Handwritten text in Burmese script, consisting of approximately 12 lines. The script is dense and cursive, typical of traditional Burmese manuscripts. The text is written on aged, slightly discolored paper. There are some dark spots and stains, particularly a large one in the middle right section. The right margin contains several lines of text written in a different script, likely Thai, which appears to be a commentary or a separate entry related to the main text.

Vertical text in Thai script, likely a marginal note or commentary. It is written in a smaller, more compact script than the main Burmese text. The text is arranged in a single column, running vertically down the right side of the page.

Handwritten notes in the top right corner, possibly a title or reference.

Main body of handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is densely packed and spans most of the page width.

Small handwritten mark or symbol on the left margin.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Persian or Urdu, covering the main body of the document. The text is densely written and spans most of the page.

Handwritten text in the top right corner, possibly a date or a reference.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. It consists of approximately 10 lines of text, with some lines being longer than others. The script is dense and flowing, characteristic of historical cursive. There are some dark spots and stains on the paper, particularly in the middle section. The text appears to be a continuous narrative or record, possibly related to a legal or administrative matter, given the use of certain words and symbols. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged historical document.
